MORE than a thousand sons of the State College of Washington were enlisted in the army and navy of the United States, during the World War. Many of these young men fought on the battlefields of France, and those who did not were eager to go. Thirty-five or more of them have stood at attention for the last time. They have paid full price for victory, and it is fitting that their part in the great struggle should be commemorated.

Naturally, it is our desire that something permanent and useful be erected at the State College to help immortalize the memory of these men. In this wish let us realize that the boys who have gone will not be made greater by anything we can do or say. We are the beneficiaries of their sacrifices, and it is for us to be worthy in thought, word and deed of what they have done.

If today we look out upon the world with eyes that see and understand the world's problems; if in our outlook we firmly resolve that in the future there shall be justice among men, then we shall do honor to our heroes who have given their all in the great struggle. Furthermore, it is only by courageous living that we shall keep awake in our own lives the memory of our student-soldiers who paid living tribute on the battlefields of Europe. Otherwise all that we can do or say will be as nothing.

The burden that today rests upon educated men and women is a heavy one. They must see the world's problems more clearly than anyone else, and they must resolve that in the coming years peace and democracy, for which our boys died, shall become a reality. Justice and freedom shall not be idle words. Battles not of life and death, but of principles, are to be waged by men and women of the State College. They must be able to see injustice, and to fight it, in order that real democracy shall rule in the world.

THE WOMEN'S LEAGUE is an organization of which every collegiate woman is a member. The purpose of the organization is to further the spirit of unity and mutual helpfulness, promote interest in student activities, work for campus improvements, and to be a medium by which the social and moral standard of the College can be kept on a high plane.

To make this organization more effective, a council was formed consisting of a representative from every recognized women's organization on the campus. This is the executive body of the League, which discusses and deliberates upon important matters, the better to present them to the individual organizations.

THE Alumni Association of the Washington State College, made up principally of graduates of the College, is becoming larger and stronger with each succeeding graduating class. At present the membership is approximately 1550. The members of this Association are scattered all over the world, performing creditable service in keeping with the spirit of the institution. The Pow-Wow, the official publication, has rendered admirable service in keeping the Association informed of the activities of its members and progress of the institution. The greatest service that can be rendered by the Association is to actively help in all measures to further the progress of the College.

COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE

Dean E. C. Johnson

TO those who are ambitious for service, a college course in agriculture offers exceptional opportunities. Great wealth does not await them but great usefulness will be their lot and the economic returns will be sufficient for every need. In no field is there greater opportunity for leadership than in the agricultural field. Here every young man and woman with initiative and ability cannot fail to find a place for useful work either on their own farm, in their home community or in some distant community. To work in this field they must be well trained not only in the fundamentals of agriculture but also in the basic sciences of Botany, Chemistry, Physics and Zoology. That their vision may be broad and their conception of the movements and tendencies of human society may be clear, they must have, in addition, a good grasp of History, Economics, English and language. The Fine Arts, too, will contribute to their pleasure and their happiness.

A course in agriculture, therefore, first emphasizes agricultural subjects which in themselves are educational and cultural and prepare for useful service. At the same time it does not overlook the Liberal Arts, and is so built as to give every student the rounded training which, coupled with later experience, will make it possible for him to succeed, and to serve, to lead wisely and to live fully.

Animal Husbandry

ONE of the most important functions of the Department of Animal Husbandry is to create and foster high ideals of livestock in the mind of the student. It is one of the purposes of this department to sufficiently stimulate the enthusiasm of high-class livestock within the student that on leaving the institution he will seek to attain some of the ideals he has built up during his college career.

"There is more, vastly more, in the care and study and successful manipulation of animal life than the mere dollars and cents to be derived from their maintenance as a factor in successful farming. . . . The joy of living comes in most overflowing measure to him who builds up in a constructive way from that which falls into his possession, or who creates something which contributes to the comfort or satisfaction of those round about him that did not exist before he set hands to the task. The man who can at last lay aside his work with the knowledge that the world at large, or the community in which he has spent his days, is better off, even in slight degree, because of his having lived, has been a successful man."

The practical creation of high ideals with most students must be produced by means of some tangible object lessons. For which reason the department maintains as many specimens of the various breeds of improved livestock as is found feasible. In addition these flocks, herds and studs furnish an excellent opportunity for the teaching and developing of students' ability in managing livestock.

The experimental phase of the Department of Animal Husbandry work consists in demonstrating and determining the means of best utilizing feeds produced within this State by livestock for production of meat and work.

ANIMAL HUSBANDRY

D a i r y H u s b a n d r y

THE work of the Department of Dairy Husbandry covers two main fields, production and manufacturing. Through the work in production the student is grounded in the fundamentals of good dairy farming. The courses in dairy manufacturing gives the student training in butter making, ice cream making, cheese making and the handling of market milk. The proper combination of production and manufacturing courses, together with allied subjects, prepares the student for positions as dairy inspector, dairy chemist, dairy bacteriologist, city milk plant manager, government expert in various lines or instructor in dairy subjects.

Poultry Husbandry

THE department is serving the poultry industry of the State through personal correspondence, circulars and bulletins, as well as assisting poultry breeders in their work by testing out the production possibilities of their flocks. The Third Contest, which is now in progress, has led the contests in the United States and Canada in egg production for the months of November, December, January and February, 1918-1919. The Second Contest, which closed October 31, 1918, had the high-record American hen, number 251, with a production of 311 eggs.

Three pens made the highest pen records ever made in any contest in this country. The average production per hen in these pens was 252.2 eggs, 251.6 eggs and 238 eggs respectively.

The department offers courses for students wishing to specialize either in the production side of Poultry Husbandry or in the preparation and storage side of the industry, as well as general courses for the average student.

H o r t i c u l t u r e

THE Horticultural Department is serving in three great lines of College work: College teaching, research and College extension. With Washington now the second apple-producing State in the Union, and the second State in vegetable seed production, there is a call for help. This help must be constructive, technical and practical. It is the constant effort of the department to meet these requirements in all of its lines of endeavor.

The Department of Horticulture keeps in close touch with the fruit and vegetable growers of the State, and is always glad to cooperate with them by providing publications on various phases of the work or by personal correspondence. Lists of the kinds and varieties of fruits adapted to the various sections of the State are available, as are also recommendations as to the choice of a location for this branch of agriculture. The fact that Washington ranks among the first of the States in the commercial production of apples is an indication of the magnitude of her fruit-growing industry. There is still room for its vast expansion.

Agriculture Engineering

THE Department of Agricultural Engineering gives the instructional work in farm repairs, farm building design and construction, farm engines, farm machinery, farm concrete work and farm drainage.

During the second quarter of the present school year, the entire time of the department was devoted to short courses in Farm Gas Engines and Gas Tractors. In these engine courses the aim is to train men to successfully operate and repair farm power equipment. During the past year the regular laboratory equipment of engines and tractors was supplemented by engines and tractors brought in by the farmers for adjustment, repairs and overhauling. This feature gives the men considerable actual experience in the repair and upkeep of this equipment.

In addition to the class work the department furnishes plans for farm buildings and equipment, helps to solve the farm engineering problems of those who present them. Members of the department have been doing some work in cooperation with the Extension Department in holding a series of one-week Farm Engine short courses in different counties over the State, giving silo construction demonstrations, and other agricultural engineering work of a similar nature.

Farm Crops

Experimental Corn Field

THE Department of Farm Crops has made extensive tests of different varieties of wheat, oats and barley and other crops in order to determine those most suitable for growing in Washington. New varieties are developed by selection and breeding when existing varieties are not satisfactory. A portion of the experimental farm is devoted to the production of pure seed of superior varieties and the seed is distributed at cost to residents of the State. Bacteria culture, which in most portions of this State has been found to be necessary to the success of legume crops, is distributed to farmers of the State in cooperation with the Division of Bacteriology. The department is in a position to supply information concerning the best methods of cropping and cropping practices, and welcomes inquiries from residents of the State along these lines.

College courses are given in General Field Crops, Cereal Crops, Forage Crops, Commercial Grain Grading, Crop Breeding, Weeds and Climatology. The information acquired by experiments forms an important part of the college instruction.

Soils

THE collegiate work in the Department of Soils is divided up into soil physics, soil chemistry, soil biology and general soil management.

Besides the excellent and complete equipment in laboratories and recitation rooms, field plots and greenhouse facilities are also available for instructional use. The purpose of such complete equipment is not to teach a great many abstract facts only, but to apply these facts to field and greenhouse practice.

In the Experiment Station a large amount of investigational work is conducted on various soil types, representative of several sections of the State. The extreme variations in soil and climatic conditions in this State, together with a lack of a permanent system of soil management so common to any new agriculture country, demand a large volume of essential research work.

Much valuable information concerning soils of the State has been accumulated by the department and is available to residents, either through correspondence or by direct extension work offered by members of the department at farmers' meetings or institutes.

Soils Demonstration

Plant Pathology

THE Department of Plant Pathology was made a part of the College of Agriculture when the work in Agriculture was first organized as a distinct College. Previous to that time the work had been a part of the Department of Botany.

Plant Pathology is that phase of applied botany which deals with the troubles or diseases of plants. The time of the staff is about equally divided between instruction and research, the latter work being done under the Experiment Station.

The department is rendering valuable service to the State in the following ways:

1. Instructional work: Resident classes and correspondence students.
2. In carrying out the Plant Disease Survey of the State and answering numerous inquiries concerning the cause and methods of control of crop diseases.
3. By experimental work on the more important agricultural problems of the State. The problems include three of special interest to Eastern Washington: wheat smut, fire blight and Rhizoctonia disease. The experimental work is facilitated by the maintenance on the College farm of a ten-acre disease garden called the Pathologium.

Dissecting

F a r m M a n a g e m e n t

FOR many years the chief energy of the Agricultural Colleges and Experiment Stations was directed almost entirely toward those problems that had to do with mere increase of production.

During recent years, the general rise in price of land, the depletion of virgin fertility, the increase of insect pests and diseases, the development of expensive machinery, the increasing fastidiousness of the markets and the greater complexity of industrial organization generally, are making it exceedingly difficult to succeed financially without following careful business methods. The State College of Washington is recognizing this condition and is making provision for investigations and instruction in this important phase of agriculture by establishing a Department of Farm Management in the College of Agriculture and the Experiment Station. The work of the new department will include various problems of farm accounts, cost accounting and the general organization and management of a farm.

SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

MORE than twenty million young people are in attendance at our public schools; over seven hundred thousand teachers are employed in instructing them; almost a billion dollars is expended yearly in supporting this undertaking. In these days it is unnecessary to emphasize the interests and vital connection between the schools and national life.

If it be true that "anything that is worth doing is worth thinking about," it would seem that this huge enterprise of public education is deserving of our best thought and effort. Systems of education in state, city and country are in process of reorganization; existing institutions are being scrutinized as never before; new institutions are being created; courses of study are being revised, and new methods of instruction applied. For some years this has been going on, and a considerable body of knowledge has arisen relative to the problems. The time has passed when the teacher was considered sufficiently prepared for his work with a more or less adequate knowledge of his subject, and the ability to keep order in his class. The school system of today demands men and women who know the subjects they are to teach, of course, but who, in addition, know not a little of history, aims and organization of the institution they serve in, and possess some knowledge of the pupils they teach, and an acquaintance with the professional literature in their field. Under present conditions only such teachers can hope for advancement.

To further this work to the best of its ability—to help make teaching a profession—is the aim of the School of Education.

COLLEGE OF HOME ECONOMICS

Professor Agnes H. Craig

LAST year all the resources of the College were directed toward the problems related to winning the war. This year Reconstruction ideas are taking a prominent place in the program of both faculty and students.

A number of new features stand prominently in the foreground; namely, the new Teacher-training required in connection with the Vocational Education provided for in the Smith-Hughes Act, the special interest in preparing women for work as Home Demonstration Agents in connection with the Extension Service of the College, and cooperative work in harmony with the requirements of the Junior Red Cross organization.

The trend of professional training based on Home Economics preparation tends to greater diversification. Formerly most of our graduates went into the teaching profession. This year the senior class of thirty-six, the largest in the history of the Division, shows a marked tendency to follow other lines of professional interest. Two of our graduates have been accepted as student dietitians by prominent Eastern hospitals. They are Mattie Pattison of Spokane, who has gone to the Alleghaney General, Pittsburg, Pa., and Blodwen Evans, also of Spokane, who will enter the Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Boston, Mass., September first.

Other types of work being taken up by this year's graduates are: Home Demonstration Agent positions, City Health Inspectors, Tea Room Management, and, of course, the teaching of Home Economics in the High Schools and Normals of this and other States.

The College is prepared to give well-rounded training in Home Economics in relation to the art of living, in Home Economics Teacher-Training Work, in Institutional Management, in various types of Vocational Home Economics, and to develop research in the same field.

College of Mechanical Arts and Engineering

Dean H. V. Carpenter

JULES VERNE, Edgar Allen Poe and the Arabian Nights man, all rolled into one, could not have dreamed of all the inventions that have been made along destructive lines during the world war.

Now comes the chance to apply these devices to the problems of peace and reconstruction. Not only must we build these devices over into everyday utilities, but we must satisfy the demand of everyone for something new and venturesome.

The tremendous scale of our activities during the fight has left us ready to undertake projects that were laughed at before the war, with the result that the next few years will be marked by enterprises in which the engineers will be called upon for unheard-of achievements in constructive work and industrial development.

Manufacturing has gained a foothold in the Northwest that will not be given up, and many of our cities will become factory centers instead of simple shipping points for raw produce. The Northwest as a center of natural power will assert itself and we may be sure that in all this development the engineers from Washington State will have a prominent place. Fewer of these men will find their opportunities outside the State and more and more will their training be appreciated in their home communities.

Mechanical and Electrical Engineering

WHEN Uncle Sam really got down to the business of war he discovered he was playing a new game and that there were many strange things going on that he had not expected. He found that thousands of new-fangled guns and millions of shells must be made, and boats and battleships designed, built and tested at lightning speed.

His enemy was flying overhead and spying out his movements, and must be driven down. Signals must be sent through smoke, fire and shell, and from aeroplane to submarine and from trenches to batteries. Subs must be spotted and also sunk. Enemy guns must be located, battleships must be maintained at the highest efficiency, and searchlights must catch the birds above. In all these activities and many others the Mechanical and Electrical Engineers from Washington State were busy and effective.

Even the Profs were not overlooked. During last summer the engineering shops and laboratories were busier than ever training enlisted men as mechanics, automobile trouble shooters, truck drivers, machinists, blacksmiths, carpenters and radio operators. Other members of the faculty were testing ship equipment, developing wireless telephones, training men for the big guns, installing delicate apparatus in submarines, developing apparatus for locating enemy guns, etc.

With the coming of peace it seems that every student who dropped his books to fight, and who did not make the supreme sacrifice, is planning to complete his engineering course.

Electrical Laboratory

Machine Shop

Civil Engineering

ONE would think that a Civil Engineer would be completely out of a job in war time; however, it was discovered that there were certain railroads needed, and that the highways needed improving and rebuilding, and heavy concrete work was demanded everywhere. Bridges must be thrown across rivers before the Hun could be chased in proper style. Cantonments must be laid out, supplied with water and sanitation and buildings erected. Whole armies must be supplied with water, and concrete factory structures must be designed and built. All with the least amount of guess-work possible.

So it turned out that every Civil Engineer found his place in a hurry, and many more were needed. Now that the fighting is over every Civil finds himself three years behind with his road building, railroad repairs, improvements and city work.

With Uncle Sam's new habit of spending money where it is needed regardless of quantity, there is little hope that the Civil Engineer will get a vacation for some time to come.

Automobile Laboratory

Sheet Metal Shop

Architecture

ARCHITECTURAL students may be divided into two general types: those who are artistic in their inclination but have a practical turn of mind, and those who are fundamentally practical with an ambition to follow some phase of building construction.

Students of the first type usually become architectural designers, interior decorators, perspective and water-color artists, landscape architects, draftsmen for manufacturers of the numerous artistic accessories used in building, such as hardware, electric light fixtures, ornamental iron, plaster decoration, furniture, etc., etc. Students of the second type generally become architectural engineers, structural draftsmen, superintendents, building inspectors, contracting engineers, etc.

In America today there are specialists in schools, banks, office buildings, hotels, etc., and there are many other fields for specialization, but the architect who is fairly artistic and is, at the same time also endowed with a practical mind, may hope to be successful in the general practice of architecture should he prefer it to a specialized field.

The Department of Architecture of the State College of Washington is the oldest department in the Pacific Northwest, and offers to the men and women of this part of the country a broad four-year course in Architecture or special two-year courses for mature students who cannot devote a longer time to collegiate study.

SCHOOL OF MINES

Dean L. O. Howard

TO THE MINING ENGINEERS

By the Late Rossiter W. Raymond

Beside a thousand turbid streams
We follow where the treasure gleams,
The onset of our mighty hose
Disturbs from ages of repose
The rocky guardians of the gold
Left by refugees of old,
When rivers hastened, sore bestead,
And dropped their jewels as they fled.

Beneath the everlasting snow
Of stainless summits, blow on blow
We smite and delve; we pierce and blast
Along Earth's vein's, until at last
The sleeping mountains, long at rest,
Dream troubled dreams, and tremble lest
With inward throes that shake and burn,
Old geologic pangs return.

There for a while, reluctantly
The shore surrendered to the sea,
And when, anon with sullen roar
The sea retreated from the shore,
And great fern forests lived and died
To mark the battle's changing tide—
Their tombs we spoil, to bear away
The sunshine of an elder day.

What wakes the echoes of the hills?
The clangor of our stamping-mills.
What paints the sky with midnight reds?
The flaming of our tunnel heads,
The blinking, blasting breath that slips
Through fierce converters' bellowing lips,
The fiery snakes, that to and fro,
Among the roll-trains glide and glow.

We hail in every rank of art
The earnest souls that do their part;
Yet not to any lower the crest
Of that we deem the worthiest:
The arts which first of arts began!
The art which most has wrought for man!
And we will greet with loudest cheers
Ourselves—the Mining Engineers!

SCHOOL OF MUSIC & APPLIED DESIGN

(Music, Art and Design, Expression and Dramatic Art)

Dean H. Kimbrough

MORE than five hundred students took work in the School of Music and Applied Design during the past College year. The enrollment in this division is increasing rapidly.

As a large percentage of the students entering college come from the country, and from small towns where advantages along these lines are meagre, it is particularly necessary that such students be offered the best possible opportunities in College.

To this end the College maintains an excellent teaching staff, provides adequate equipment, and brings many fine musical attractions, art exhibitions, etc., to the State College.

The College Orchestra

THE State College Orchestra for this year is the best in the history of the institution, and is an organization which is a distinct credit to the College. As the opportunity of hearing the larger works for symphony orchestra is so limited outside of the music centers, plans are now being made for a short tour by this organization.

The Treble Cleff Club

THE Treble Cleff Club is a double quartet of the advanced students of Mrs. Ina Wright-Herbst, and was organized in the winter of 1916-17.

Each year the club makes a tour of the Inland Empire, and plans are now being made for a third annual trip. It will include Garfield, Cheney, Puyallup, Auburn, Sedro-Woolley, Vancouver and perhaps Yakima and Olympia.

A very attractive program has been arranged, including solo numbers by Mrs. Herbst, soprano; Dorothy McMaster, violinist, and June Sanders, pianist. The numbers of the club are all of exceptional interest, being the delicate, lighter songs and brilliant dramatic numbers.

The spinning scene from the "Flying Dutchman," by Wagner, will be presented in costume.

The Glee Club Trip

IT was not a rose between two thorns, merely three women among sixteen men who departed on the "bug" for Colfax, April eleventh, to do themselves honor before the patrons of the Ridgeway Theatre. The initial concert of the sixteen-day tour was a soothing melody to Mrs. Strong's anxiety of six months' accumulation, for the boys "put over" every number with the true old Washington State spirit.

The next night the boys were singing "Down in Dear Old Dayton" with variations. They sang in the church, they sang at the dance, they sang at the—well, they were still singing when the Mayor regained consciousness at 4 a.m. and turned out the lights of the city. Sunday at Walla Walla gave some a chance to recuperate, and with the coming of dusk returned the composure of the club, and the land of sunshine and flowers was made to revel in joyful reminiscence. The club had struck its stride and was going in mid-season form.

A night's rest in Portland was an enjoyable feature of the trip, and was noticeable the next evening when the club, every member and every number, starred at the U. S. Theatre in Vancouver. Kelso with its grassy lanes and flowered paths leading up the valley to the wooded foothills afforded opportunities galore to the sentimentally inclined to take the lime-light. 'Tis said that more than one of the boys selected million-dollar homes in the beautiful Cowlitz valley. Only time will tell.

A long, uneventful ride to and from Gray's Harbor and the club took Centralia by storm. A full house at the Liberty Theatre greeted every member with hearty approval. Especially did Zella prove popular, and justly so, for she was excelling all past performances. Olympia entertained the club royally. Camp Lewis, the scene of the next concert, was to the songsters the best date and most interesting on the schedule. The environment and khaki-clad audience added a thrill to which the boys, yea, verily, the girls, responded with their very best.

At Everett the quartette scored high. The performance was divided into three half-hour concerts to meet the demands of the management, but the shift in no way detracted from the show.

Anacortes, on Fidalgo Island, furnished a pleasant evening to the club as well as the townspeople, but the following evening at Sedro-Woolley is the one never to be forgotten by the Glee Club of 1919. The next evening the club gave a concert at the Bellingham Normal School.

At Wenatchee the spirit of 1919 clashed with that of Washington State in days gone by, and the old came out the victor. The Misses Alice Lodge and Esther Horan, graduates with the class of '17, entertained the club as only "grads" from the "College on the Hill" know how, and received a unanimous vote of thanks from the club for the best party ever staged.

Spokane, North Central and the Delta Club—merely to recall the trio produces a sensation of joy: Realizing the grandest trip ever taken by a State College Glee Club was drawing to a close, the club demonstrated its regret by making the impression lasting on the fifteen hundred or more spectators, a climax reached through fifteen successful concerts, each more successful than the last and every one drawing the people closer to their own State College. Olive throughout the trip had reserved the privilege to star at Spokane, and even the gods could not have planned her success more completely. She and Zella were the only exceptions to the ensuing press reports, the substance of which, instead of "another Spokane boy makes good," to "a whole raft of Spokane boys win laurels at home and abroad on State College Glee Club tour."

But why shouldn't there be such an inscription, for is not the whole State humming gems from Marcelle, and the multitude asking itself, "How you gonna keep them down on the farm after they've seen Paree?"

THE importance which is attached to the work in the Applied Design is justified by its universal influence in all cultural and industrial progress.

The aim is to develop a finer appreciation of beauty in relation to life, to elevate creative work above the plane of mere labor; to stimulate a desire for purposeful self-expression; to refine our sense of fitness of things; to give to the future home-maker a wholesome regard for that which is proper; to equip our future teachers with that power of observation, selection and æsthetic judgment which gives them the power of adjustment; to develop an appreciative attitude rather than a critical one; to be constructive as compared to destructive; to live and work as a means of expressing our true self; to have a high regard for the achievements as depending more upon our intellectual effort than upon the exercise of talent.

Miss M. LaFollette

Miss A. Roziskey

A CHANGE in the instructors of the Department of Dramatics has taken place within the past year. Miss Augusta Roziskey, who was in the department for eight years, left for the East, where she is an instructor in the Columbia School of Expression in Columbia University, Chicago. In her place Miss Melcena LaFollette is now instructor. Miss LaFollette is a product of the State College of Washington, and since her graduation from this College has attended the Leland Powers School of the Spoken Word in Massachusetts and in connection with Mrs. Bertha Kunz Baker, and has taught at the Weshington Seminary for Girls at Washington, D. C., and also at the Finch School for Girls in New York City. The State College of Washington feels very fortunate in having Miss LaFollette in the position.

DID the Seniors win the Frosh-Soph Glee on Friday night, April 26, 1918? "Oh! Mercy, yes." All the other classes displayed pep but could not compete with the honored Seniors. The plot was the reunion of four old W. S. C. classmates "over there," who recalled old times, sang some of the College songs and revelled in the pleasures of memories. The curtain of memory was raised and the class, in cap and gown, sang and gave some yells. Then a service, symbolical of what the class had already offered to the world, came into view, and with a slow curtain the "Farewell Song," adapted by Mr. Hill Williams to the tune of the "Long, Long Trail," the stunt was completed.

The stunts of the three other classes were clever and original also, and were greatly enjoyed by the W. S. C. audience.

“Cousin Kate”

Clarence Peterson

“COUSIN KATE,” the play staged by the Mask and Dagger Dramatic Club on Friday night, April 12, 1918, was distinctly successful. The play was a comedy and was acted as such. It was a series of natural happenings held together by the frequent statement that Amy had been jilted. The natural acting of the young brother made it more laughable; but the logic of the curate, in so far as it affected himself, was the most amusing of all. The old device of public opinion attempting to make the girl marry contrary to her choice, and the entrance into the theme of two unthought-of lovers, was used to introduce some very amusing situations and some humorous repartee.

The characters were well done throughout the play. Grace Douglas, as Kate Curtis—the “Cousin Kate,” who always helped the helpless family out of their troubles, and was consequently looked upon as the one to save the delicate situation when the lover disappeared—was the hit of the play.

Mr. Bungay, as the foxy young curate who was bent on matrimony, was the most amusing character of the whole play.

The laurels for the night’s acting went unquestionably to Mr. Peterson, who acted the part of the persisting lover to the world-experienced Kate and the jilter, and, in turn, the jilted lover of Amy.

Marie Rushton, as the demure Amy Spencer, who was jilted by a man to whom she was engaged to marry on the succeeding day, although she was really in love with the curate who had preached the great sermon on married life, played her part in her usual successful manner.

Hulda Schweer made her debut to the State College theatre-going public by playing the most difficult role of the play, the part of the mother of Amy, who wished to please everyone without hurting anyone else’s feelings, in a most admirable manner.

Lorraine Boggs played the part of the younger brother of the jilted girl with all the interpretation possible to put into the part. His naturalness was better than that of any of the other players.

Miss Olive Bottorff, as Jane the servant, was as real life in her part.

"Cousin Kate" was thoroughly enjoyed and the audience was pleased to a marked degree.

"The Magistrate"

Sidney Allison

"SMILE ALL THE WHILE" must have been the motto of Pinero when he wrote "The Magistrate," which the Mask and Dagger Club presented in the school auditorium March 22. "The Magistrate" is one of the cleverest three-act comedy farces which ever rolled the yellow gold into a playwright's pocket. Miss LaFollette deserves a medal for her work in coaching the play, for somehow or other she removed the stamp of amateur from her first W. S. C. production. From the time Jack Hamilton, as Cis Farrington, as a lad of fourteen plus five more years of which he was ignorant, the play moved rapidly and smoothly. Many new ideas in scenery and lighting were introduced and were a tribute to the ingenuity and work of Mr. Allen and Merle Davis, stage managers.

Pinero is one of the few playwrights who can produce a farce without resorting to the time-honored slap-stick comedy to make his audience laugh. Wherever played, "The Magistrate" has been a decided success. As "Good Morning, Judge," a musical comedy, it made a hit in New York and Eastern cities. In its original form it was recently played in the famous Keith Theatre, Boston. The part of Mr. Posket, the magistrate, offers such great opportunity for character work that some of the best actors include it in their repertoire.

The plot is simple enough to be easily grasped and complex enough to keep one continually guessing. Mr. Posket, a typical English magistrate, falls in love with Mrs. Barrington, a most charming widow who considers it a kindness to tell her husband that she is "but 31" when she is "but 36." The opening scene finds the play fairly well tangled, as Mr. Posket's "deah boy" is deceived as to his real age. Having 19 years old propensities, however, he leads Mr. Posket, whose sole dissipation is whist, a merry chase, and as Mr. Posket says, "the first evil companionship I have ever had."

Col. Lukyn, the godfather of Cis, writes that he is about to visit his old friend Posket. Mrs. Posket greatly determines to stop him before he dis-closes any embarrassing dates. She finally finds him in a supper room in company with Captain Vale, the betrothed of Mrs. Posket's sister, who accompanies her.

In the meantime the now completely undermined Mr. Posket is literally carried to the same hotel by Cis, who says "A fellow is just as old as he feels, and I feel no end of a man."

They all stay past the closing hour and are raided by the police. Mr. Posket and Cis escape by jumping through the skylight into the kitchen. The rest are hailed before Mr. Posket next morning and unknowingly he convicts his wife and sister-in-law to "seven days' imprisonment without the option of a fine." The subsequent straightening of the tangled threads, including the women's release by Bullamy and Cis' marriage to Beaty, his music mistress, brings the play to a whirlwind finish which swept the audience off their feet.

Helen Jones as Mrs. Posket made a most charming English matron, and hen-pecked her poor husband in a most delightful way. In spite of the fact that she was mistress of her home she was never over-bearing, and really carried the part as though she had been Mrs. Posket all her life, which is the real test.

Sydney Allison, as the "Magistrate," was a most successful interpreter of character and played up to his part every minute of the time. As a fussy maiden-aunt type, he scored constant applause from an appreciative audience. In spite of his being so hen-pecked he maintained conventional dignity and even asserted a certain charming naive authority.

Jack Hamilton had a rather difficult role to play, as his "desired tastes were far beyond his years." His acting with Mr. Posket was especially good, and he led that worthy gentleman a merry chase.

Josephine Vogler as Beaty the music mistress, was demure and chic, and fell in love with Cis in an apparently real and natural way.

Mildred Christensen as Miss Verrinder, Mrs. Posket's sister, a rather blase young English girl, did splendid work and played up to the action of the play to a marked degree.

Albion Horrall and Mr. Lindsey made one of the funniest combinations in the play, not only in respect to their vertical make-up but in the perfect way in which they played in the hotel scene. Lindsey came from London or he never could have acquired that perfect English accent and that utterly helpless manner when faced by one of the fair sex.

Horrall as Col. Lukyn might have stepped out of Kipling, and deserved the splendid response given him by the audience.

Bullamy, officious, hustling Bullamy, was played in a very real way by Merrill Heald. As the friend of Mr. Posket, he served that gentleman some little agitation and aided a great deal more. As a grumpy bachelor he clearly showed that marriage was tommyrot.

The character parts were taken by Alton Markley as Isidore, the French waiter, and Cecile Whitefield as Pothom, Posket's servant, and most terribly in love with Cis and dime novels. She made a small part stand out by her clever work. Markley was French from his "I beg your pardon, Sir?" and goatee to his sweeping bow and "Zank you very much."

Russell Emhoff slipped out of his role as butler whenever his master or mistress was not on hand and left no doubt in the mind of the audience that he was a butler by necessity and not by inclination. He helped to tie the double-bow knot in the plot very well.

Lee Dunlap, as the owner of the hotel, made a very excellent, excitable and obsequious host.

College of Sciences and Arts

Dean W. G. Beach

THE College of Sciences and Arts unites in one organization the following seven distinct departments. Botany, Chemistry, Geology, Zoology, English, Economics and History, Foreign Languages. The courses given by these departments serve the entire College, because all types of education depend in part upon fundamental sciences, and upon language and the social sciences. Each also has its own particular field in which students may become especially proficient and which prepare for special vocations. In addition, the work of these departments is a most direct preparation for citizenship—the highest purpose which the State has in mind in establishing such an institution as the State College.

The Faculty of the College of Sciences and Arts numbers fifty men and women, and almost all of the students of the entire institution are enrolled at some time in one or more of its classes.

During the past two years many of its teaching force have been in the war service of their country, either directly in a military way or in some of the many governmental bureaus or auxiliary organizations. Many of them have now already returned to their College work, and it is expected that the remainder will be back at the College next fall. Additional teachers will be added, also, in several departments, it being our determination to make the work of these departments even stronger and of a higher standard than they have been heretofore.

NEITHER drill, dress parade nor inspection! It is just a class at the rim of the Snake River Canyon starting on a botany "hike." Bacteriology, Botany, Pharmacognosy, Plant Physiology, Taxonomy, we offer; we may differ on the value of the courses, but the trips over the hills to the mountains and the rivers are enjoyed by the students of all. Burned fingers, unsavory odors, the drowsy air of the lecture room, even the long names of the plants to be found on the trip are forgotten in the strenuous climb to the mountains or in the pleasure of luncheon close by the river. It is sad enough to let class work interfere with one's College education, but that is not to be compared with the failure to see the early spring of the canyon and the thrill of being "lost" in the pine woods.

Field Trip

Chemistry

THE Department of Chemistry, through its courses in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering, prepares men and women for useful service in teaching, in government research and in the industries.

Several of our graduates had the privilege of using their chemical training in the service of their country during the war. They were assigned to duty at the various research stations and arsenals and had an active part in the preparation of toxic gases used against the enemy. Willis E. Mason, while on duty at Edgewood Arsenal, Maryland, lost his life from burns by mustard gas.

Chemical Warfare

Chemists and manufacturers, relieved from the pressure of war, are turning their attention to the great problem of making our country economically independent. In the expansion of chemical industry which must result, the graduates from W. S. C. will have an important part.

Economic Science and History

THE Department of Economic Science and History offers courses in the social sciences; for example, in Economics, Sociology, History and Politics.

It aims to be of service to all students of the College through courses designed, not only to broaden the interests and culture of the students, but also to prepare them for intelligent and effective participation in the highly complex political, economic and social life of our day.

For students especially interested in the social sciences the department offers a wide range of courses designed to prepare for the social professions and to give them a broad and, to some extent, a technical training for business.

Foreign Language

TO solve the problems of reconstruction, to win the markets awaiting our country, to carry commerce to the world, Americans must hasten to equip themselves with modern foreign languages. Proficiency in foreign tongues must be attained by many, if America's opportunity is to be exploited to the full.

In countless lines of commercial, agricultural, industrial and educational development in Latin America, Europe and the Orient, thousands of vigorous young men and women, proficient in foreign languages are sought, and the demand is growing by leaps and bounds.

The Foreign Language Department of the State College of Washington is offering an ideal type of instruction to meet this imperative need. Not only are the languages taught as living tongues from the first hour's recitation, but even the foreign accent and intonation are analyzed by means of the phonetic laboratory, when enables the student to master the elusive "melody" of the foreign tongue. Commercial courses in the foreign languages are taught and other work is offered which is designed to prepare students for consular and diplomatic service, as well as professional and technical work abroad. A special teachers' training course is given to those desiring to fit themselves for instruction in high schools and colleges.

A notable innovation in modern language instruction is the establishment of a Spanish House, where students may live in a genuine Spanish atmosphere with a cultured Spanish family from Madrid, and will thus be enabled to perfect themselves in colloquial Castilian in a comparatively short time. A French House will also soon be established, which will offer similar advantages to students of French at the College.

Thus the State College of Washington is offering a thoroughly practical, as well as literary training in modern languages, and is affording opportunities that cannot be found elsewhere in the West.

Geology

THE Department of Geology offers courses in Geology, Mineralogy, Petrography, Crystallography and Topographic and Field Geology. The department is one of the oldest in the College and was built up largely through the efforts of Professor Solon Shedd, who is at present on leave of absence doing research work in Oklahoma.

The courses offered by the department are intended to fit persons for teaching the subject in its different phases, and for positions in the profession. Geologists in large numbers are employed on the U. S. Geological Survey, State Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines.

The petroleum geologist is rapidly coming to the front. New discoveries in this line are constantly being made. Recovery of gas by the absorption method, and recovery of oil from shales by distillation are fields that are yet in their youth.

THE Zoology Laboratories of the State College of Washington have been actively engaged in war-time problems of food production and conservation. Through a cooperative agreement with the United States Department of Agriculture a force of four specialists has been at work on the destruction of insects injurious to fruits and field crops. The investigations on the ground squirrels has been broadened to include a serious study of woodchucks. Education of the beekeepers of the State to the enemies of their industry has called for two men in the field. Considerable progress on the investigation of cranberry insects has been possible through cooperation with the Bureau of Entomology.

The Zoology Department provides for the photographic work of the College, for which purpose it has a well-equipped studio. The class rooms and laboratories give instruction along general zoological lines—anatomy, histology, embryology and genetics—as well as more specially in entomology and ornithology.

New activities include an extended investigation of the codling moth, of the wireworm, and of bee diseases, the last being made possible through a special Act of the last Legislature.

OUT of the stress and turmoil of war-time, the Department of English emerges with a new vision of its mission as an educative agency, or, perhaps better, with its old vision clarified and endued with greater significance. In any true analysis of the matter the ultimate foe of Prussianism is not arms, effective as the allies' arms have proved themselves; it is intelligence. The world will be safe for democracy only when democracy is at its best. There is no safety in this world, or any other, for a stupid and selfish "democracy." Hence it is that the greatest service that can be rendered humanity, as it passes more and more under the sway of the democratic ideal, is to promote to the utmost the capacity for thought and the expression of thought, and to lay upon men's souls with gripping power the best and most beautiful that the race has learned or dreamed concerning man, the heart of man and human life. It is to this finer and ampler vision that the Department of English would devote itself.

SCHOOL OF PHARMACY

Dr. P. H. Dirstine

THE close of the war and the increase in business which has immediately followed, has found the School of Pharmacy unable to supply the demands for competent pharmacists. Many of the soldiers returning from the war are opening new stores, and the profession of pharmacy, both from the standpoint of clerk and proprietor, is exceptionally attractive.

The School of Pharmacy offers a two-year course, a three-year course and a four-year course in pharmacy. Over fifty per cent. of the students enrolling in pharmacy are three and four-year students. The School of Pharmacy also offers a two-year course in Pre-dentistry and Pre-medicine.

The School of Pharmacy has as its purpose the training of men and women for a vocation in life that offers many opportunities, several of which are as follows: Practice of retail pharmacy, pharmaceutical chemists for manufacturing drug firms, chemists, food and drug inspectors, Federal and State, teachers of pharmacy and chemistry, travelling salesmen, investigators in pharmaceutical research.

EVERY statement relative to the scope of the work, the opportunity for a true education, every cut, picture and illustration depicting the buildings, equipment and facilities for student study and student life in this Chinook is a general reason why any young man or woman may well come to the State College of Washington for his or her education. And just as true is it that every statement regarding the opportunity for service in the veterinary profession, and every picture and illustration of faculty, buildings, class rooms, clinic or group of students is splendid evidence why any young man desiring to enter that great field of service to both humanity and our domestic animals, will find at the College of Veterinary Science of the State College of Washington a most splendid opportunity to secure the necessary education which such service demands.

ALUMNARY

Military Science and Tactics

Lieut.-Col. Wall

MILITARY has been backward this year at Washington State College because of the war. The S. A. T. C. was stationed here for several months last fall but all the men were discharged by December 21. Most of the men left school at that time and did not come back. Most of the other Northwestern colleges started drill according to the rules of the R. O. T. C. at the start of the New Year, while Washington State did not start until the 24th of March.

Many of the old men have returned and also many new men have enrolled for military work. The combination of men who have had drill in the regular army or S. A. T. C. together with men who have never drilled at all makes the work very much harder than ever before.

The drilling has commenced in earnest. The two hundred and fifty men are drilling every day, and are progressing rapidly. The annual encampment will be held between April 23 and May 1, after which the annual inspection by a regular officer will occur. The results of the inspection will show how this College compares with other Colleges in the United States. The better the impression the Inspector receives the more money the College will receive from the national government.

Lieut.-Col. Wall, the Commandant, is assisted by four Sergeants from the regular army and several men who obtained their commission in different branches of the service. Lieut.-Col. Wall and aids are doing everything in their power to further the interests of Washington State in the eyes of the government at Washington, D. C.

AS in a daze we read of the Belgians' heroic defence of Liege in August, 1914. We cast from our minds any idea which tended to include America in such realities. Again we were brought to our feet when cries of the sufferers from the torpedoed Lusitania reached the Atlantic shores of passive America, but yet we were too prone to admit that a place in Flanders awaited the Yankee fighter.

The routine of class-room work gradually became less appealing as the dream passed into reality, and wearers of the crimson and gray discounted their patriotism for Washington State in comparison with that for Uncle Sam. A part remained, however, for the College to play, and this she did loyally by enlisting her whole-hearted energies in the cause for which her sons had crossed the sea to fight.

The Student Army Training Corp was established during the summer of '18 as a part of the mammoth plan for preparing men for service, and Washington State was designated as one of the training camps. Twelve hundred men, almost equally divided between the Vocational and Collegiate Sections, were accepted for instruction in October. The men were housed in Wilson, College and Ferry Halls and the Mechanics Art Building. Mess halls were established in the dining room of Ferry Hall and in a building constructed especially for S. A. T. C. just south of College Hall.

In recounting the history of the S. A. T. C. there is only one phase which stands out as paramount in our memory—that fight against the "flu," which for two months consumed every moment of not only every man's time in the camp, but of every man and woman in Pullman as well. Forty-one of the boys "went West," but their going will be some day marked by a memorial on the heights of the State College campus.

Only a limited amount of intensive field training was possible on account of the epidemic, but not a little training was had by those who labored twenty-four hours a day behind a "flu" mask in the various hospitals established to meet the emergency. However, forty men were picked from the camp and sent to the Artillery O. T. C. at Camp Taylor. The selection of detachments for other branches of the O. T. C. was well under way when the Armistice put an end to the S. A. T. C. ambition and cut short a great war work just through the experimental stage.

The closing days were marked by a series of very enjoyable banquets, which tended in part to counteract the student soldiers' eagerness to escape the fetters of quarantine and army life in general.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

J. F. Bohler

THE world crisis through which we have recently passed will undoubtedly give physical education a prestige in the years to come that it has heretofore always lacked. The need of it was recognized when it was found that thirty per cent. of those who were called by the draft, between the ages of twenty-one and thirty-one, were unfit for military service. The emphasis placed by the government upon the health and the physique of the common soldier has done much to awaken a lively interest in the subject. The results obtained by the vigorous courses of bodily exercises, and the athletic programs have shown the world how physical education can produce results when given the opportunity.

Since the State Legislature of Washington at its last session enacted a law making physical education compulsory in all public schools of the State, it is the purpose of the Department of Physical Education of the State College to aid in carrying out this program by offering the courses that will be necessary to prepare prospective teachers to give the work with success.

We aim to increase the physical efficiency of our students by gymnastics, games, mass and competitive athletics.

Junior Prom

WHEN the Junior Prom was given, on the 13th of April, 1918, the gymnasium was dressed up in its best. A low ceiling was formed by a large flag in the center with crimson and grey streamers running from it to the edge of the balcony. The lights were shaded and at one end of the room the Junior and Senior numerals were displayed.

The Military Ball

THE annual Military Ball, given by the cadet officers of Washington State College, took place Friday evening, February 21, 1919, and was a great success. The decorations were beautiful, being the national colors in streamers from the huge service flag of the College, which held the place of honor in the center of the Armory. The walls were covered with the olive drab U. S. army blankets, which caused the men present to remember many pleasant, or otherwise, instances connected with them.

The Varsity Ball

W. S. C. spirit, colors and all, made this year's Varsity one of the most successful dances of the year. The gymnasium was decorated in the College colors, and the "W" blankets and softened lights took the place of the usual details of palms, greens and crepe streamers. The new jazz orchestra was a very big success and put pep into the dance.

The Junior Prom

WITH a step, trot and a waltz, the Junior Prom danced into history Friday night, April 4, 1919. The dance was strictly formal. Green crepe streamers formed a low lattice work, and red and white flowers, the class colors, hanging from the lattice work, gave the effect of an arbor or bower. The orchestra played in a summer house formed by a lattice of crepe paper also. One dance for reserved for the Seniors, in whose honor the Prom was given.

The Frosh Dance

The class of 1921 held an informal dance in the men's gymnasium, Saturday evening, April 20, 1918. The patrons and patronesses were Mr. and Mrs. C. Hix, Mr. and Mrs. Turnbow, Miss Green and Mr. C. G. Hodges. About seventy-five couples were in attendance.

The Hard Times Ball

After the Frosh had burned their caps in the traditional bonfire, the last event of Campus Day was celebrated—The Hard Times Ball, May 3, 1918.

The gym was crowded with people—everyone wearing what they pleased, except the men—they were not allowed to wear collars or ties. Some may have tried but they just couldn't get away with it. The police squad were strong and husky. Although every one felt the effects of the hard day's labor just completed, they enjoyed themselves and another Campus Day came to a happy close.

The Gray "W" Club Dance

The Gray "W" Club entertained at an informal College dance in the gymnasium, Saturday evening, May 4, 1918. The dance was largely attended and Mr. Trimble's orchestra furnished the music and pep for the occasion.

The patrons and patronesses were Professor and Mrs. E. C. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Solon Shedd, Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Turnbow and Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Bohler.

Effect of War on Athletics

IN no field of undergraduate activities was the decimating influence of the war so evident as in that of athletics. This section of the "Chinook" has been much reduced and is indicative of the extent to which the war has eclipsed sporting interest in the undergraduate mind. This record is necessarily somewhat incomplete, like the activities which it describes. The arising interest in the after-the-war conditions, however, promises great prospects for next year.

S. A. T. C. Football

"Don't flinch, don't foul, hit the line hard."—Theodore Roosevelt.

THE number and size of the men necessary to fill the several different kinds of U. S. uniforms left the State College a group of men that knew little or nothing about football, and the job of Coach Alvord was to lead these men, who in their turn had little time to spend on the game. Between the time spent on school work, military work and sickness, there was no great possibility of making a winning team.

Where a Good Part of Our Football Men Were in 1918

S EVEN of the men of the Marine team—Zimmerman, Glover, Moran, LeRoy Hanley, Bangs, Richard Hanley and Gillis—were Washington State men, and all but Zimmerman and Bangs would have been with us instead of the star Marine team if it had not been for the war. As things stand now, we will have all of these men with us next season but Bangs, as Zimmerman will act as one of the assistant coaches. They will not come alone, however, but will bring with them Shannon, Stendal, Galloway and Mohr. These men from the Marine team alone will be a great asset, but they are only a part of the star team that will carry W. S. C. through next year's season.

At the time the "Chinook" goes to press the coach has not been announced, but it is expected that we will have one that will teach the same kind of football played by our winning team of 1915.

BRYAN "BUSER" LEWIS, Captain. Lewis was the leading pitcher in the Northwest conference. His brand of pitching would have landed him a berth with Portland but he choose to stick with old Washington State.

McCLELLAN "CHICK" ROCKEY. Rockey, lead-off hitter, played the keystone sack in "big league" style. As in basketball he played a consistent game throughout the season.

HENRY "WIV" WIVELL. Wivell was one of the best backstops in the conference. His stellar performance behind the bat prevented the opponents from scoring on many occasions. Wivell's heavy hitting was a feature of the season.

CLARENCE "SHRIV" SHRIVER. Shriver handled third like a veteran. He finished the season with a batting average of over .300. Shriver bids well to develop into one of the fastest third basemen in the conference.

ALBERT "AL" MULLER. The tall first sacker was always "there" in a pinch and contributed much towards the winning of the championship. Much is expected of him next year.

Northwest Conference Champions

LEO "MIKE" MORAN. Moran divided the pitching honors with Capt. Lewis. Moran's pitching, connected with his heavy hitting, won many a game for Washington State. "Mike" led the Northwest conference in batting, with an average of .420.

ELDON "SKEET" JENNE. Jenne demonstrated to the satisfaction of all that he could win a letter in both baseball and track. His fielding and hitting featured in many of the games.

LEROY "BUCK" KNIGHT. Playing his first year on the varsity, Knight developed into a first-class outfielder. He displayed the old fight and was always in the game.

HENRY "HANK" LOREN. Loren, successor to Roy Bohler, displayed a brand of fielding equal to that of any shortstop in the conference.

1918 BASE-BALL

Review of the Season

THE season of 1918 proved very successful for baseball as for all other sports, the team winning 11 of the 12 conference games. The one game lost was to the University of Montana at Missoula, after the close of College and when many of the players had gone home. Much credit must be given to Coach Bohler and Assistant-Coach Casad for the fine showing of the team.

The conference season opened with a victory over our old rival, the University of Idaho, at Moscow, by a score of 2 to 1. The feature of the game was the fielding of Kotula and the pitching of Lewis. Hanley and Rockey proved to be our main sluggers of the day. Hunter was the star for Idaho, as he got 3 of the 5 hits made off of Lewis.

The second game of the season was played against Idaho on Rogers field. We were returned victors by the score of 11 to 9. The large score was due to poor fielding and fairly heavy hitting by both teams. Moran, although hit hard at times, proved to be quite a strike-out artist, whiffing no less than 16 men during the game. Wivell and Rockey were the ones who fattened their batting averages most during the game. Idaho had no outstanding stars, the hitting and errors being evenly divided.

In one of the poorest games of the season the varsity took the third straight game from Idaho by the close score of 6-5, the fielding being erratic and W. S. C. was the worst offender. Shriver was the batting king of the day, getting 3 hits out of 5 times to bat.

For the fourth time in three weeks W. S. C. took Idaho into camp by the score of 12 to 5. Although out-hit by Idaho the varsity fielded much better. Lewis fanned out 10 men and kept his hits well scattered. Rockey for W.-S. C. and McDonald for Idaho were the only two to hit for more than one base, Rockey getting a triple.

Review of the Season

THE Montana team was the next to feel the sting of defeat at the hands of the fast W. S. C. team, and went home with two defeats attached. At no time in either game did Montana U. prove dangerous, being out-classed in all departments of the game. In the first game Wivell was the star, as he got two home runs, which helped much in winning the 15-to-5 game. The second game was won by 13 to nothing, Lewis and Swanson allowing only one hit. Vitt pitched fair ball for Montana but received the poorest of support.

The team next sojourned to Walla Walla for a two-game series with Whitman, which proved to be the two closest games of the season. Both were won by the varsity by the score of 6 to 5. DeGrief and Garver pitched tight ball for the Missionaries, allowing only six singles in the first game and seven in the next. The squeeze play was used in both contests to great advantage by the varsity. The grass infield baffled our players somewhat, who were used to a dirt diamond.

The last games on the home grounds were played with Whitman, both being won by the varsity, the first 24 to 6 and the second 11 to 2. The Whitman team was in turn puzzled by our dirt infield, being used to their fast grass field. The defence was entirely shattered, the home team registering 24 runs on 22 hits, eight errors being chalked up against Whitman. In the first contest Muller was the hitting star of the day, getting a single, a two-bagger and a home run in five times at bat. In the second game W. S. C. continued a steady bombardment of DeGrief's and Garver's delivery, and when the game ended the local varsity held down the long end of a 11 to 2 score. The feature of the game was DeGrief's triple play, unassisted, in the fifth inning.

Review of the Season

THE week after College was out and many of the players had gone home, the varsity made a trip to Montana. The first game was played with the Missoula town team and was won by 5 to 0. Heavy hitting and Lewis' airtight pitching winning the game. The second game was with the University of Montana, and, for the first time of the season, the varsity came out with the little end of the score. Coming back with the old fight the varsity walloped the U. by the lopsided score of 13 to 5. While on the trip Spokane University was also taken on and let down with the small end of a 22 to 5 score. Swanson, Doc's portsider, pitched the game.

REVIEW OF THE SEASON

When the conference schedules for the spring sports were arranged in Spokane during the winter it was with the understanding that any or all of the teams could withdraw without forfeiture, because of the war conditions. All of the teams scheduled to stage track meets withdrew but Idaho, who was twice defeated by Washington State College.

JENNE

CAULDER

The Team

LEROY "SHOCK" SCHACTLER has always been a dependable man to fall back on for the 440 and relay races. But this year he came through with a good all-around record. He was a winner in all the sprints, but not being satisfied with this took a few points in the hurdles and javelin throw.

CLEMENT "CLEM" PHILLIPS, the captain-elect, proved himself a capable man to take the place of "Jit" Smith in the distance runs, and has made quite a valuable man for the team because he is never lacking in pep. For this reason he will make a splendid captain for next year's team.

ELDON JENNE, although only a freshman, has proved to be a high point winner, excelling in the jumps and pole vault, and is a man on whom we are depending a great deal for the coming season. He is expected to break some conference records in the pole vault before he leaves here.

CAULDER was a hard worker and filled the much-needed position as hurdler, and also made a valuable man for the relay and the broad jump.

TRACK

The Team

RAYMOND "RAY" KING is just as big as his brother, and is filling the big gap that Carl left in the weight events when he went into the service. He did good work in the shot-put and discus in both meets.

FLOYD "RATS" RATCHFORD came to us from the west side of the State, and like Jenne proved to us that some good men come from that part of the country. We did not realize what a prize we had until he got on the track and showed us how slow Idaho men really were in the distances.

ALVERO "GUNBOAT" SMITH stayed persistently with the team for four years, running the mile and two-mile grind year after year, and well deservel the letter he won in his senior year.

THE students are just beginning to realize the value of a good rooter king. Frank Douglass has put the pep into things this year in a way that only a good king can do. He has shown us that the position holds an important place in all athletics. In the years to come there will be considerable competition and it will take a good man to hold the job.

W. RAY "JACK" GLOVER, having had some experience on the team before, and being rather "rangy," made a splendid man to help Washington State at the tip-off position.

JULIUS "JAZZ" HOLLMANN, a member of last year's squad, added tremendously to the strength of Coach Bohler's quintette. He proved to be a good captain and played a consistent game throughout the season.

McCLELLAN "CHICK" ROCKEY, playing left-forward, had a chance to show plenty of speed in basket shooting ability. In this he gave no disappointment. He was a very satisfactory running-mate for "Pink" McIver.

MARTCIL "TULE" KOTULA, the fast W. S. C. guard, kept everyone busy trying to follow his tricky, speedy plays. No opponent was safe with the ball while he was near, and he made a splendid season's record.

HARLAND "BURGIE" BURGESS probably showed more change for the better during the long season than anyone on the team. He was a new man at the game but finished the season in good style.

MILO "PINK" McIVER, also on last year's squad, showed good headwork throughout the season and made a splendid record as a basket-shooter in the coast games.

Review of the 1919 Basketball Season

THE 1919 basketball team started the after-the-war sports with a good push and gave the State indoor-sport fans many good and exciting eye-feasts. They took second in the Coast conference, which fell but little short of what was hoped for after they first started the trip. The first game was played with the University of Washington on their home floor, and the first score of 42 to 33, in favor of the State College, proved to be a good start for the trip that was to follow down the Coast.

The next evening the lead was followed up on the same floor with a score of 29 to 23. The first part of the game both teams seemed to be bothered a little with stage fright and the play was very jerky. The State College boys, however, came to the front in the second half, and annexed the long end of the score. The game was characterized by close guarding.

The game played on the U. of O. floor was hard on "Doc" Bohler's men, tired from travelling all day, here meeting defeat for the first time of the season. The play was fast and rough the first half, and although the W. S. C. men ran up the largest score in the second half, they could not overcome the lead, leaving the score 29 to 23.

The second game with Oregon was a different story. For the first five minutes W. S. C. had a good lead, but Oregon rallied here and at no time did the score show three points difference until the blowing of the whistle. McIvor's last free throw made the score 36 to 35 in favor of W. S. C.

The Crimson and Gray team took both of the games from O. A. C., the last conference to be played on the trip. W. S. C. took the lead in the first part of the game and held it throughout the evening, making the final score 36 to 17.

In the second game O. A. C. showed good team-work but could not stand the hard play, losing by a score of 20 to 4.

The last game on the Coast was played with Multnomah Club. The hard trip was showing on the W. S. C. men and they could not compete with the fast team-work, losing by a score of 30 to 18.

Review of the Season

ON Friday evening, February 7th, W. S. C. played O. A. C. in the College gymnasium and showed that they had lost their stride. The team was not as good as the one that played on the Coast, and only by a hard fight before a large crowd they could handle the faster O. A. C. men, the score being 31 to 20.

Saturday night O. A. C. kept their good team-work up and by showing better style in basket-shooting defeated W. S. C. by a score of 31 to 26.

Much to the sorrow of all the W. S. C. students, the team started a losing series with Idaho. The first game was played in Moscow, Monday evening, and "Doc's" men failed to play up to their standard. They were unable to find the baskets, and the "Gem-Staters" took the game with the score 44 to 24.

To the delight of the Washington spectators, by playing a hard, fast game, our men defeated Idaho here on Monday, February 24th, by a score of 31 to 26.

On March 11, playing the unluckiest game of the year, the State College quintette went down to defeat through the administration of their old rival, the U. of I., by a score of 38 to 20.

The last two games were played with Whitman and the team was unable to come out of the slump that followed their return home, thus losing both games.

Freshmen Basketball

THE Freshmen Basketball team was the only one represented in this year's athletics because of the laying aside of the freshmen rule during the war. They played a splendid style of basketball, having little trouble in defeating all of the other classes, and the varsity had little lead in any of the games they played them.

Interscholastic Athletics

EACH year our interscholastic sports become stronger, but this year, the hardest of all years on athletics, gave little hope for a successful turn-out of the various high school teams. All of the schools had lost a large number of their best men, and it was feared when the 1918 track was suggested that it would be impossible to get any athletes here. Dick Hanley and "Doc" Bohler were determined to try, and after sending out a letter, decided that they could put it through.

The student body stood behind them in good style, and two hundred athletes were brought in. They were all royally entertained by the fraternities, and everyone seemed very well satisfied.

The fact that the records were broken in two events proved that we had some splendid athletes here.

There were not very many students in the school to finance the basketball tournament this winter, but the loyalty of the few that were here, added to the splendid spirit shown by the Pullman High School students and Pullman business men, made possible the financing of the games. Most of the players were rather young but showed good style in their fast playing. The fact that two of the winning teams were coached by Washington State men made the games more interesting to the students.

Class Work

Ruth L. Fitch

THE work in gymnastics reaches all women enrolled in the institution. It consists of: Marching, gymnastics, Swedish work, wands, Indian clubs, dumb-bells, apparatus, simple athletics and æsthetic dancing.

PHYSICAL DIRECTORS

Ruth L. Fitch

Marjorie Green

Marjorie Green

Marion Swezey

Marion Swezey, former head of the Physical Education Department for Women, is now on leave of absence in government service.

Women's Athletic Association

THE purpose of the Women's Athletic Association is to promote physical efficiency among the women of the State College by fostering an interest in gymnastics and athletic activities. Any woman enrolled in the institution is eligible to membership, and is classified as collegiate or elementary, according as to whether or not she has fulfilled requirements for collegiate standing.

COUNCIL

The executive board of W. A. A. is the Athletic Council, composed of the officers of the association, a representative from each class in College and one from the E. S. D., the manager of each activity for which points are granted, and the women's physical director.

Campus Activities of W. A. A.

INTERGROUP CONTESTS

ASIDE from class tournaments, intergroup contests are also held in some of the sports. The intergroup tennis tournament in 1918 was won by the Greek letter group represented by the Kappa Alpha Thetas, who had previously succeeded in out-classing the other sororities.

The intergroup basketball contest this year was won by the Lolami team.

THE BIRTH OF THE FLOWERS

The æsthetic dancing gives the organization a very good means of entertaining the public. Last year "The Birth of the Flowers" was put on with great success. This was the first dancing recital staged at W. S. C. and the participants showed unusual ability and excellent training. The dances and costumes for the recital were arranged and adapted by Miss Green.

MATINEE DANCES

Women's matinee dances signify W. A. A.'s part in bringing the women of the College together in order that they may become better acquainted, as well as for the enjoyment these dances always give.

The Crimson W

THE Crimson W is the highest award made in women's athletics. It stands not so much for unusual ability in one sport as for a high proficiency in athletics in general. In past years individual awards of small emblems of the sports participated in, or a "W. A. A." for certain specified collective honors have been made, but in the spring of 1918 the A. S. S. C. W. voted to give recognition to those of collegiate membership reaching requirements worked out by the Athletic Councils. Thus the Crimson W came into existence.

Crimson W sweaters are awarded to those earning 300 points and a place on two honor teams in the course of one year, while Crimson W's are granted for a total of 800 points. Points are earned as follows:

Class Teams.....	100 points each
Cross Country.....	50 points
Track—
First place.....	25 points
Second place.....	15 points
Third place.....	5 points

An honor team for each sport is composed of the number required, elected from among the members of the class teams participating in the tournament. It is chosen on the basis of good sportsmanship, skill and regularity of attendance at practice. Fifty points in track or membership on the winning relay team also counts as membership on an honor team.

W winners: Marie Cave, Vernon Barnes, Nancy Hughes, Kate Argo, Louise Stilke, Emily Babcock.

Sweater winners: Marie Cave, Vernon Barnes, Dorothea Sorenson, Mildred McMaster.

Baseball

BASEBALL in 1918 proved a very popular sport as usual. The Seniors were unable to find sufficient players to make a team, but the other classes fared better as to numbers, and three teams contested for first place. The teams were well matched and the tournament hard fought. The Sophomores won the contest for the second year, giving them a good start toward permanent possession of the cup, and in that an incentive to work hard in the spring of 1919.

The honor team chosen was: Marie Cave, Betty Brothers, Angeline Ward, Ethel Hilen, Corine Barclay, Francis Lincoln, May Springer, Dorothea Sorenson, Edna Simpkins.

Field Day

FIELD DAY for women is a comparatively new thing on the Campus. Lack of practice on the part of many of the contestants has made it less successful than we wish it could be. We hope that with an increasing familiarity with track work more interest will be shown, and the meet of last year seemed to point toward this end. The events of the meet are: Baseball throw, basketball throw, shot put, broad jump, high jump, sprints, relay and hurdles. The Juniors won the meet again last year, Vernon Barnes and Marie Cave scoring high as usual.

Tennis

TENNIS is one of our most popular spring sports. Preliminary matches to determine the members of the class teams preceed the interclass tournament. The season of 1918 was unusually favorable for this sport, and there were a large number of contestants for the various teams. The championship was won by the Class of 1919. The members of this team were Beryl Wadsworth and Mildred McMaster.

Singles were held to decide upon the members of the honor teams. The winners of these contests were Mildred McMaster and Glenna Troy.

Glenna Troy

Mildred McMaster

Beryl Wadsworth

Hockey

THE enthusiasm aroused by the first interclass hockey tournament in 1917 gave that sport a permanent place on the W. A. S. schedule. It was decided that hockey should be the initial contest each year, but owing to bad conditions last fall the tournament was postponed until spring.

Action

The Teams

Basketball

BASKETBALL is our winter sport, and immediately follows hockey. This year there was strong competition for the Freshmen and Sophomore teams. The Juniors, though limited in the number trying out, made up for the lack by diligent practice, but the Seniors in the rush of other duties were unable to practice and were handicapped by the loss of two of their best players at the last moment, and so lost the championship they have held for three years. The tournament was won by the Juniors, 1920.

Miss Stella Scurlock

THE purpose of this organization is to unite the women of the institution in loyalty to Jesus Christ and thus associate them with the students of the world for the advancement of God's Kingdom on earth. It further aims to be a training school for Christian leaders—leaders for Christian work, and Christian leaders for civic, professional and industrial life.

The meeting of incoming students at the trains, the listing and recommendation of approved rooms and the employment of women students is officially handled for the College by the Association.

This year the National Board called its first all-student-staff meeting in Evanston, Illinois, February 20-24, for the purpose of determining the relation of the Y. W. C. A. to the New World.

The association at W. S. C., with the full support of the Associated Students, by means of a tag day raised the funds necessary to send a student delegate, which W. S. C. was allowed.

WAR WORK FOR THE S. A. T. C.

W. P. Hauser

FROM June 15, 1918, until October, the "Y" was fortunate to secure large quarters in the same building in which the three hundred Training Detachment men lived. With chairs and tables, reading and writing material, athletic equipment and events, two motion picture shows and one stunt night per week, and Sunday dinners in Pullman homes, the "Y" helped make life worth living for the enlisted men.

Two football games, two moving picture shows and several small group religious meetings and impromptu musicales were put on between the quarantine periods under which the S. A. T. C. boys spent nearly all of their time. Just before demobilization, in co-operation with the State College, the "Y" gave each company a farewell banquet. During this long and anxious period of sickness and quarantine, the chief service, and only service the "Y" could render, was the canteen, which handled everything the boys needed.

Mr. W. P. Hauser is serving his second year as general secretary. Our new "Y" is largely the result of his foresight and efforts. The past year has been full of work and it has taxed the energies of both assistants and himself. The possibilities of future work are untold, and with the aid of the permanent building he will be able to lead the organization to much greater service.

Y. M. C. A. Building

AIMS OF THE Y. M. C. A.

THE obligations of the Y. M. C. A. have not ceased, now that World Peace and Federation are in sight. The whole-hearted enthusiasm with which it went through the past conflict must now be turned into the solving of the problems of Reconstructing Idealism and Materialism. The need of today is for men who have unbiased judgment, a Christian attitude of life and with the vision of world problems. The organization of the Y. M. C. A. provides the way in this most helpful and character-building influence.

The students of the State College of Washington appreciate the consideration given by the National War Work Council in the erection of a building near the Campus for their use. It is dedicated to the glory of God for the social and moral uplift of all the men of the State College of Washington and the city of Pullman. The full realization of this desire sets the goal towards which we will strive as that of SERVICE to our companions, making for the full development of real living.

SEABECK CONFERENCE

Seabeck stands in the memory of those who have been there as a vision of world relationships and responsibilities. The conference is full of discussions with big men of the world. It is a training camp for Christian Service on the Campus and in community life. Athletics, vaudeville and hikes are mixed with the serious hours, thus developing all sides of the well-rounded man.

The Mask and Dagger Club is a dramatic organization whose membership is limited to those having successfully carried a leading part in a play or to those who have interpreted a part true to character. The organization strives to further the interest in College dramatics in staging two plays of distinguished type during the year. The club plans to take a trip next year to many Inland Empire towns. The purpose of the trip is to stage a play, the idea of which is to promote community and high-school drama.

Le Sans Souci of Washington State College was organized to bring the French students together for the purpose of speaking French and thus bettering their conversational ability. This is accomplished by giving teas, programs, picnics and such informal gatherings where French alone is spoken.

The enrollment in French is large and the club has been fortunate in interesting so many of the students. Any student taking French is eligible to the club. There are also several citizens of Pullman who have interested themselves in the club and have helped make it a better organization.

Just now when France and America are so closely united it is well to cement them together still more by interesting Americans in France, the French people and language. This is being effectively done by such organizations as Le Sans Souci.

In Appreciation

THROUGH this column the Editor wishes to thank the student body, members of the faculty, printers and engravers who have so willingly aided in the production of this book. Especially, do I wish to thank those students not on the staff, who contributed their time and efforts in the collecting and shaping of the material for publication.

Considerable credit is due the former Editor, Mr. Edward Stevens, who was forced to drop the work on account of sickness, for his organization of the work at the start.

In publishing the "Chinook of 1920" we have endeavored to present the material available in the best manner possible. From the very outset we had our troubles. With the late start, necessitated by the Student Army Training Corps, and the delay caused in the change in the personnel of the staff, it has only been through the splendid co-operation of the entire State College that the book has been possible.

A Page of Truths

By SHADES OF HAWKSHAW

Is hard to write
By one who must
Pass as an imitator
And necessity is
No incentive for Inspiration so
Stop crabbing
Look blindly
Listen wisely.

There was a boy
Named Bill Miller
He owned an auto
And a Sigma Nu pin
The pin he lost and Regained
The auto he has
To try again.
For he is one
Of those on-again
Off-again Birds
That never know
Quits.

But John Clark
And Avis Brooks
Are worse than Bill
They are together
So much that they
Have the prize rep
Of being the Eugenics Couple of
The Campus.

Did you ever see
Lover Evans and
Sweetheart Moffitt
Hold hands and . . .
In front of the
Zeta Phi House?
Hawkshaw did.

Or did you ever
See the pride of Pullman
Marie Cave and Glenn Glover run the Library Sunday
Afternoons?
Hawkshaw did but won't tell.

And did you ever
Hear the reason
That Howard Olin
Stopped going to the
Alpha Chi House?
Neither did I but Hawkshaw would
Like to know
Wouldn't you?

And do you know
Why Maynard Wexler
Has the cognomen of
"Flint-Rock" Wexler?
Hawkshaw knows
But won't tell.

And did you ever
Hear why the Gobs
In the S. N. T. C. named
Their good ship
"Dean Rodeen"?
Ask Aunt Rhoda
She will tell you—
Hawkshaw can't.

Did you ever hear
"Rhodie" M. White
Get called down?
Hawkshaw did
And it made up
For the numerous
And unnecessary
Times he has "Burned."

Did you ever
Hear the reason
"Grub" McCroskey was Appointed Big Chief?
Ask Clem Phillips
He won't tell.

Do you know
Why Kappa Alpha Theta
And Phi Beta Phi
Have so many members
And pledges?
Hawkshaw says
"Look at their Furniture bill."

And did you ever
Hear the Lambda Chi
Boost their fellows
In the baseball games?
Hawkshaw did and Knows why there is a
"Busher" Lewis.

Do you know who
Is the best politician
On the Campus?
Hawkshaw knows
It isn't an S. P. E.

Do you know why
The high price of Meat?
Hawkshaw says
"Ask Jimmie Edwards."

Did you ever hear
What the gobs gave
"Bill" Mathews as a
Present at the end of His Reign?
And the note that
They sent with it?
Ask him
Hawkshaw heard.

Did you hear the Doerr slam on
"Doc" Edge's heart?
Hawkshaw did.

Do you know how many girls
Ward Rinehart has
Proposed to in school?
Hawkshaw knows of
Eight in one year.
Ward just ordered
Another
New pin.

Did you ever hear
Why the original
Hawkshaw quit
Writing his rank
Stuff?
Ask Dorothy McMaster.

Do you know
How Josephine had the
Nerve to turn McKenna up
At the baseball game?
Ask Marge Heaton
She knows.

Why Have Friday Night?

STEICH WAKABAYASHI: "Friday night should be devoted to literary societies, debates and study. We have only seven nights in the week and three nights for foolishness is too much."

* * *

MARY SETZER: "I tried out the following program and find it excellent:

"7:00 to 8:00—Literary Society. Ed. Note?

"8:00 to 8:30—Doll up for dance.

"8:30 to 11:30—Trip the light fantastic.

"11:30 to 12:00—Lingering farewell."

* * *

HARRY GEORGE: "Dream over next Evergreen. Call up all members of staff, printer and cartoonist. Try to figure out the points in the jokes submitted by the Vet. Department for publication."

* * *

DEAN WHITE: "I enjoy spending Friday night playing Jackstraws or reading 'Service' poems to the girls and their callers. I also have a wonderful collection of paper weights, pictures and curios which I exhibit on Friday night."

MISS LEILA HUNT: "I agree perfectly with the idea of groups entertaining in their own homes, providing they don't bolt their dinner to get ready for guests. If the girls will agree to chew each mouthful of food thirty times I will give my consent as a member of the social committee to entertaining on Friday night."

* * *

NELS NELSON: "Your idea of Friday night is all wrong. If you insist I'll give you the plan followed out at the University of California, which really is the only proper method."

* * *

PHYLLIS SAYLES AND HOWARD OLIN: "Oh, we always study on Friday nights so that we can devote Saturday and Sunday afternoons to walking. It is good for one's and even two's health. The walk to the College farm and also along the Moscow road is very invigorating."

* * *

PROF. CORDELL: "The utility of Friday night study is doubtful. The value of serious concentration to a certain degree is unquestionable, but after a fixed time the student reaches the point of 'diminishing returns for energy expended.'"

* * *

LIEUT.-COL. WALL: "I think Friday night should mark a cessation of hostilities between the profs and students. After a five-day bombardment of questions it is necessary to permit young collegians to recuperate their losses by some light recreation. It is essential to maintain their morale."

All Tired Out

'Side Lights on Boy Scout Encampment at W.S.C

Lute Linkun, who hung around Headquarters and helped Kernel Mae do nothing.

The Lutes soon found the range for their fussing campaign, and concentrated their fire upon a large white object a half mile from camp.

Privt. Bracket who turned out for hurdling was disqualified for hitting the first hurdle.

Tiny Roughneck who took army life too seriously. He is shown above on duty at post number six.

Sgt. Webber's only visible means of support are shown above. When not sitting in he was walking out - usually toward old A.C.'s house.

C.P.O. Mathews was very popular with the men. At the last formation he was presented with a little token of their friendship.

Pit. Bohanan, who was confined to the convalescent ward and was unable to attend drill, but was allowed to take light daily exercise.

Birds-eye view of Co. B in Company front formation. Co. B was considered the 2nd best company in the camp.

Lute Fox giving his sergeant's final instructions at Spokane before their departure for camp at Thanksgiving

The most high and mighty Excelsior Titanic of local chapter of Beta Tau. We are wondering what G.D. initiations are like.

Dean White kept the poor quards busy on post No. 9. She soon learned that the quard wasnt to read her passes at one hundred yards

Our photographer got this picture just before the plate hit Lute McQuinnis. They say Ensign Haven was some discus thrower once, out the window.

This is Sgt. Griesinger Co. A looking for his bed one night in the dark after taking bed check. He found it next morning hanging outside the window.

Sharqent Prescott Co. B arriving in camp 5:30 A.M. He inspected the quard house before breakfast

Another B.I. view of Co. B. The officer of the day discovered this A.M. at reveille that not a single scout leader was on the job

Dolly Munson, who bought himself some leather putts and made life miserable for the sick boys in camp. Was he popular? H-I No!

EVOLUTION OF A CHAPEL ORATOR

- I. FRESHMAN YEAR—Attend Chapel. Scrutinize speakers and see how they do it.
- II. SOPHOMORE YEAR—Second the motion. Move nominations be closed.
- III. JUNIOR YEAR—After a subject has been introduced, talk on it. Impress Freshmen with a sense of their relation to college activity, attending chapel, building bonfires, etc.
- IV. SENIOR YEAR—Full fledged orator. Introduce new topics. Try to make all motions, but if some one beats you to it, at least give your comment on every question up for discussion.

SPOKANE BOY MAKES GOOD

"Who is that tramping around overhead?" asked a Spokane youth, uneasily, while calling on his first college girl.

"That's papa," she replied. "He always gets restless toward morning."

Staggs: Beg pardon, Sir, I'm an assistant prof in the Vet Dept.

WOULDN'T IT BE FUNNY IF—

Dean Cleveland was ever late to class,

Marjorie Green wore high heeled shoes,

Bradley MacKenzie ever fussed at the Theta House,

The college clock would run and the bell would ring,

The "Chinook" Staff attended classes,

You saw Heinie Pratt without Mary,

Ward Rinehart lost his pin,

In Student Assembly Espinosa didn't speak,

Edna Turner and Ray Farrow went to a college dance again,

Grub McCroskey graduated,

Josephine Williams ever got by,

Doctor Golder wore a hat and

Prof. Weaver got married?

CLOTHES TALK

When you buy a "ready-made" suit you apologize for it in your mind.

If it doesn't fit or wear, you apologize for it on your back.

If your friends, or your wife, or "the only girl" don't like it, another glib apology hovers on your lips.

Come in and be measured for a TAILOR-MADE
SUIT. Prices range from $35 to $80.

The Engravings in this Annual were made by us.

We also expect to handle the Engravings for the next Annual, for as a rule, our customers compliment us by placing their renewal orders in our hands.
